"If a Body Meet a Body."

One of our well known citizens was coming home from his business in the lower part of the town, one night recently, and when he reached his front doorstep he found a stranger there which looked something like a cat, apparently very anxious to make his acquaintance.

Not understanding this, the gentleman said, "You have the right of way, my dear," and bolted around to the back of the house where, with all possible speed, he clambered up over the back fence and into the house.

Strangers are quite plenty in town, this season of the year. Keep your eyes peeled.

NUMBER 46.

NOVEMBER 15, 1901, NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS, MAINE.

VOLUME XXXII.

Rev. E. S. Cotton Accepts a Call.

The pastorate of the Baptist church, which has not been filled for some time, will now hold their meetings at the usual time, 10.30 a. m., and Rev. E. S.
Cotton of South Hampton, N. H., has accepted the call extended to him by the church and entered upon his pastoral duties here last Sunday.

Mr. Cotton made a few preliminary remarks stating his plans and intentions as pastor of the church here. Mr. Cotton said in part:

"I suppose you are all expecting to say something concerning my intentions as regards my coming work as pastor of this church. It is too early to have formulated any plans and we can only draw them as we go so as to secure the cooperation of all our congregation as well as of the church members. I think I understand the situation here fairly well and yet I have come with a good degree of confidence.

"I believe we shall be successful in accomplishing something for God in this place. We have, I trust, a devout and praying membership, a membership full of faith and courage.

"We have a good house of worship, the location is, I think, as good, if not better than any in town; all these are our favors. Then why not consider that all things are favorable for us.

"I believe there is room for a strong Baptist church here without lessening one iota the value and good work of the other denominations or drawing from their congregations. That I do not want to do. We probably could not if we felt otherwise.

"I will try my best in the study, the pulpit and the homes. We can offer no attraction to draw the people but the gospel. The story of Christ, the cross and the triumph are all we have to give to the world which has saved men and made the world what it is for good, withstanding the attacks of the enemies of righteousness these 1900 years ought to be good enough for Norway in 1901, and I think you will agree with me that it is.

"I want to establish the best church in the country, nothing less. This should be our aim. I do not believe in low standards in Christian life or in business. Aim high in the Christian life; low standards trail in the dust. Work for the promotion of church work and for the glory of God.

"Mr. Cotton is very well liked here and everything seems to point to a successful pastorate in this village. He expects to return today with his family and will occupy the upper part of the house occupied and owned by Dr. H. L. Bartlett.

More Than One Deer Per Day.

The local hunters at Molunkus camp have returned bringing with them deer.
They claim to have shot them, whether by lead or silver we won't say.

Wm. C. Cole brought home one nice buck, having shot two, and John Woodman shot a buck and doe; Ed Carner of Auburn two bucks, Ora Towle and Art Merrow of Auburn a buck and doe.

A. M. True of Middleton, Conn., shot two does, and one other deer was killed in the eight days they were at Sweet's camp. This shows an average of more than one deer per day, and this, too, where it was impossible to travel in the woods without making a deal of noise.

Shoemakers All Busy.

More cutters are now at work for the Radcliffe Shoe Co. than ever before and in the stitching room a larger volume of work is going through than at any time in the past.

New help is being engaged every day and there is no reason for any one being idle whether experienced or inexperienced provided they want to work, as they can find employment in one or the other factory.

The shipment of shoes last month was the largest October shipment ever made from this town.

Wonder if our citizens made any mistake when they repaired the old town shop and thus made an increase of business possible?

C. W. Farmer and Frank Lovejoy are at Camp McKinley, Stoneham, deer hunting.

A new plank sidewalk has been built from Main street to the hill on Marston street. This will be a great convenience to those who walk that street during our muddy seasons.

Mrs. C. S. Akers entertained the Browning Reading Club, Monday evening of this week. The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. F. Bicknell, Monday evening, Nov. 18.

The Veranda club was entertained, last Friday, at the home of Mrs. Walter Pride, Norway Lake. A large number were present and a good afternoon's work was done in the interests of the poor.

John McKay went deer-hunting in Stoneham, this week. Arthur Allen also went to the same place. Deer are reported to be quite plenty in that vicinity, but there are not a great many brought out.

The C. T. U. meets next Monday evening with Sara L. Staples at the residence of Mrs. Howard D. Smith.
The literary program will include quotations, poems and essays from Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Miss Evelyn Osborne, who was at C.
E. Ridlon's store last week advertising the 5th Avenue Mocha and Java coffee, has gone to Gardiner. During the week Mr. Ridlon sold over five hundred pounds of that brand of coffee.

J. Waldo Nash is fitting up the hall over town clerk Mason's office as an exhibition room for his collection of mounted animals. The room next his workshop, formerly used for this purpose, will form part of the work-room.

"M. J. C." is not Milo J. Currier, but a gentleman who is addressing a living in a comfortable camp many miles from Norway and who has a wife. He wants a man between the age of 30 and 45 years to work about camp. It is a good situation for the right person.

A semi-annual dividend at the rate of 3 per cent was declared last Wednesday by the officers of the Norway Savings Bank. This dividend is payable to de-positors next Wednesday, Nov. 20. The past six months business has been very satisfactory to officers and bank.

Last year the Maine Pomological Association (that was held in Norway) gave a barrel of their choicest prize apples to the Oxford County Advertiser office.

This year they send the barrel to President Roosevelt. Any one can place their see that apples have advanced in value.

Mr. Alton A. Swan of Westbrook has been visiting friends in this vicinity.
Mr. Swan is motorman on the Portland electric road and has been there since last July. Mrs. Swan has been visiting with Mrs. A. A. Robbins of this village.
She will return to Westbrook, next Saturday.

Saturday evening, Nov. 16, at 7.30 o'clock if fair (if not the first fair night following) there will be an entertainment and box supper at the Noble's Corner schoolhouse for the benefit of the school. Ladies are to furnish the box with a neekie placed in it for the gentleman.

A. P. Austin of East Bethel was in town, Wednesday. Mr. Austin for some years was stage driver and mail carrier from Locke's to East Bethel. He has logged in the woods winters for many years until a few years ago when he was obliged to give it up on account of liver trouble.

W. S. Merrill of East Waterford, on what is known as the Ira Johnson farm, raised 330 bushels of fine yellow corn, this past season. It grew unusually tall and it would average about 10 feet tall and it would average about 15 inches wide and the other 14 inches in length. They were well filled to the tips. This is bright, healthy looking corn.

J. Wesley Swann brought with him from the levee and wharves at Montreal showing the British men of war, "Psyche and Tribune." In the harbor during the visit of H. R. H., the Duke of Cornwall and York, Sept. 2. This he presented to the Standard Dry Plate Co. representative as being made on one of their plates for them to exhibit at photographic gatherings and in other places.

This is an enlargement from an $10 negative and Swan considers it "one of his best."

A Surprise Party.

Helena Swan of Montreal has been visiting her many friends in Norway. A very pleasant surprise party was given her by her classmates of the high school at the home of Mrs. Horace Pike. Her friends presented her with a very pretty brooch. The evening was passed in playing games, singing and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served. Those present were Tessa Thibodeau, Edith Bodkin, Lola Smith, Eda Frost, Cora Dexter, Emma McCrellis, Miriam Callin, Addie DeCosta, Mae Marston, Charlotte Younger and Leah Pike. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

K. of P. Thanksgiving Ball.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the 13th annual K. of P. Thanksgiving ball given under the auspices of Pennesseewassee Lodge, No. 18, which will take place at Norway Opera House, Thursday evening, Nov. 28th. The committee in charge of the affair are putting their best efforts forward which insures the people of this section one of the most successful Knights of Pythias events. Music will be by Stearns' orchestra. Floor manager, O. M.
Marston, Charles Younger and Leah Pike. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

Stayed the King of the Forest.

Geo. W. Carter returned from Bela Bennett's camp, Cyrus Hill, above Roach road, via Lilly, May, Moosehead, last Wednesday. He brought with him a fine moose with exceptionally good head and antlers.

The moose is hung up with tackle and pully from the hay loft door of Mr. Carter's stable and its nose touches the ground.

The right antler has six points and the left five and the moose is said to be six or seven years old and weighs over 400 pounds.

Mr. Carter got a shot at him head-on and the ball entered the brisket and severed the jugular vein and his lordship of the forest did not stay up very long.

Mr. Carter has a good record as a hunter, having killed several deer and to this year kill a moose rather rounds off his accomplishments and gives him an enviable record as a local nimrod.

This is his third trip to the wilds above Moosehead. Each time before he has got deer but this time it is a moose.

Ed Corner of Auburn sent the head of the buck he shot at Molunkus to J.
Waldo Nash to be mounted. It has a nice set of horns.

The intention of marriage of Edwin H.
Allen of Norway and Zilla M. Bennett of Albany are on record at the town clerk's office. A marriage certificate has been issued to Wallace W. Sheen and Mrs.
Alma Knapp of Norway.

Miss Libby, photographer, and one of the best artists in Maine in many directions, is now making at her studio burnt wood studies. Many of these are finished so they may be further decorated with water colored paintings. This process does not spread as on wood usually.
Later she will turn her attention to decorated leather, another kind of ornamentation that is very popular. She is preparing for another of her pleasing exhibits of her work in the near future.

Rev. Charles R. Tenney of Rochester, Mass., who several summers has spent his vacation at Lake Pennesse-wassee, has accepted the pastorate of the Elm Street Universalist church at Auburn and will deliver his first sermon, next Sunday morning. Mr. Tenney is the son of the late Rev. Timothy J. Tenney, a pastor of the Universalist church at Norway, 1840-46, and who married a daughter of Hon. Samuel Gibson. Mr. Tenney is a brother of Mrs. Frank A. Danforth of Norway.

The 6th General Regt. had a most delightful social evening at Toggus, Monday, at an entertainment and "ladies' night." Norway is particularly interested in this because it was named in honor of our late congressman, Gen.
George L. Beal. The General Beal Regiment of the Order of the Union Veter-al Home three years ago and named in honor of one of Maine's distinguished Asa Packard was educated in his native town and when a young man worked as a farm laborer in Paris. He then went to Hingham, Mass., where he was employed a short time, but soon returned to Greenwood. He married Sarah B. Daugherty and settled on the farm he carried on agriculture for about ten years on that farm and then bought the late residence and land of about 100 acres where he carried on general farming, dairy and stock raising.

He learned the carpenter's trade when a young man and worked at this more or less through life.

Mrs. Ada Andrews.

Saturday evening last, the sad news came over the wires from Clinton announcing the death of Mrs. Ada Andrews, widow of the late A. P. Andrews, so well known in this section of Oxford County.

Mrs. Andrews, after the death of her husband, directed her attention to the education of her only surviving child, Sullivan Andrews, leaving her a daughter previous to her husband's death.

Mrs. Andrews braved this dark cloud of affliction, and with economy and perseverance on her part and the good habits of her son through the moral training of his mother, the goal of her ambition had been reached when her son had passed his studies in the literary department of education and entered a medical school at Brunswick, from which he graduated only last June. He decided to settle in his practice in Clinton, and his mother, who still remained his supreme counselor, transferred her home only a few weeks ago from West Paris to Clinton, where she was a happy mother settled with her son in his new field of practice, but disease was preying upon her and she finally succumbed to Bright's of the kidneys at the age of 52 years.

Her sister, Mrs. George Marshall, and daughter Nellie of the Central Maine General Hospital at Lewiston, went Friday afternoon to help care for her. But the best of care and doctors' remedies could not save her. She passed away, Saturday evening, Dr. S. L. Andrews with his aunt and cousin accompanied the remains here, Sunday evening. Six or seven weeks ago Dr. Snow preached his farewell sermon here and Mrs. Andrews sat in the congregation. Now both have gone to that better land.

Mrs. Andrews was an influential woman in every good work of reform, a leader in society and was always found upon the right side. Her influence and perseverance will be missed not only here but in her new home. The funeral was held at the Union Church, Tuesday, Nov. 12. Rev. Mr. Barber was the officiating clergyman.

The Grangers had a good entertainment, Saturday evening, though it was cut short by two tableaux on account of the cry of "fire somewhere." PARIS HILL.

Shooting Accident at Paris Hill. Another shooting accident occurred, last Monday afternoon, when Newton Cummings was accidentally shot by Tom Ratcliffe, back of Paris Hill.

Young Cummings and Ratcliffe went out after partridges that afternoon. They started one bird and both fired. Ratcliffe, who had a double-barrel shot gun fired one barrel but when he cocked the hammer to fire the other the spring failed to hold the hammer and the other barrel exploded, the bullet entering the back of the Cummings boy and plowing deep into the flesh to the kidneys and lungs.

The Ratcliffe boy summoned help at once and the injured boy was taken home and Dr. Littlefield of South Paris summoned. In the evening he held a consultation with Dr. B. F. Bradbury of Norway.

Only a small number of the shot have been removed and the boy's condition is critical.

Young Cummings is the son of Wallace C. Cummings, the stage driver, and Ratcliffe is the son of Joseph Ratcliffe.

The Ratcliffe boy is naturally very grieved about the matter but he is not held responsible by any one in the least. It was purely an accident and was not due to carelessness.

The school in East Buckfield will close on Friday of this week. Whole number attendance 21, average number 19.46. Number of pupils not missing one-half day 12. Taking into consideration that no pupil resides less than half a mile from the schoolhouse and many have to go at least two miles to reach the school we consider the attendance remarkably good. All the pupils are members of the Nature Guard and weekly lessons in natural history or on plant and insect life have given much zest to their studies.

DeCoster attended the Pomological Association at Dexter, last week, and as usual were among the foremost prize winners in fruits, jellies, preserves, etc. While there Mrs. D. found time to give one of her interesting Nature Talks to two departments of the Dexter schools, which was much enjoyed by superintendent, teachers and pupils.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing her work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Mr. William Donaldson, 600 Blue Hill, Dorchester, Mass., built these houses in 1870 and roofed them with MF. Joe Stone of Otisfield.

Harassed by the Law He Moved to the Lake Regions.—Bear Fights.—Drowned in Lake Umbagog.—A Tame Moose.—

Threats of Vengeance.

Among the early settlers of Otisfield were five brothers named Stone, who came from Waterbury. They were of medium height but muscular and compactly built. Joe was the most diminutive in size but for courage and prowess his fame spread far and wide. At one time on a wager he swam the length of Pleasant Pond, a distance of four miles, without the least apparent fatigue, and would have turned about and swam back but for the interference of friends.

One dark and rainy night he found two large bears in his corn patch working destruction at a fearful rate. He attacked them with his gun, clubbed, which he soon demolished, and then seizing an oak limb he laid about him until he put the ravenous beasts to flight, one with a broken leg. Though torn and bleeding from their sharp claws he continued the pursuit until they were lost to sight in the adjacent forest.

He was never known to exhibit fear or flee from any danger only on one occasion. He and his brother Ben were outing hay near the margin of the pond.

The day was extremely hot and both were divested of clothing except a single garment. Joe seated himself upon a log which lay partly in the water. A sudden splash was heard and then Joe saw a huge water snake with his sharp hooked teeth alixed to the lower part of his neck garment.

With a loud scream of terror he leaped to his feet and sped for the house. Ben burst into a loud fit of laughter at the ridiculous figure, and began to ridicule him for his cowardice in running from an enemy which was well known to be harmless, except the natural enmity placed between him and the seed of the woman by divine decree.

"There, there, Joe!" exclaimed Ben, in loud tones, "you are scared for once, anyway. Now I'd run home if I was you, take something warm and go to bed."

The unfeeling taunts of Ben brought the frightened brother to his senses.

Seizing the serpent by the neck he tore his teeth from their grasp upon the thick, stout cloth, which was of home-make, beat his body to fragments over a rock and threw the head in Ben's face, at the same time wishing it had gone down his throat.

"And now," said Joe, after a short pause, "I will never run again, if the d—l comes in bodily shape."

Joe married Harmony Baker of Gilmantown, N. H., who was his match in almost everything—tall, muscular and full of vim to match.

Their little family increased rapidly and times were hard. The little cottage in which they dwelt stood very near the present site of the village of East Otis-field. Joe became heavily involved in debt; a cold winter was coming on.

What to do he hardly knew. Still he pressed on, hoping that something might turn up.

At that day the last cow, bed or potato could be seized and sold for a debt, and the trick of taking the advantage of insolvency laws, had not been learned.

The bills fell into the hands of a pettifogger living in an adjoining town who attached his humble home and after suing him out of possession, in company with ation. It is said that one day while reading the Bible, the oldest daughter stumbled upon the passage which reads like this: "He will first bind the strong man and then he will spoil his house." The father who had meanwhile been sitting in a reverie, started up, he heard the sentence, turned toward the reader, and with a chuckle and grin of exultation exclaimed, "He! Be glad! That little thing he can't do."

The children of both sexes became expert hunters and trappers. Negotiations were held with Boston parties, and their furs and the delicious trout which were taken from the lake in large quantities, were sold for a good price. So this little household who went there in such poverty, came to be counted among the most independent of that section of the coast.

One fine autumn day Squire and Gideon took two of the boys in a canoe and crossed the lake to pick berries which grew in great abundance near the opposite shore.

As they entered the cave, which contained their usual landing-place, they were confronted by a large bear with a trap and clog attached to his forward feet. The bear had dragged himself for several miles until foreshadowed with thirst he had come to the lake to drink. Having their guns and plenty of small shot, hoping to get a few partridges, they opened fire, which only served to enrage the bear. He growled, snarled and roared in a frightful manner. The youngsters pushed back and beat. The bear, reloading and blazing away a second time, destroying the sight of one eye. The bear became more furious, frothed at the mouth, and made frantic attempts to get at his tormentors who only laughed at his discomfiture, as a slight jab with the gun could send them far out of harm's way. The continued firing alarmed the father and young Joe, who took another boat and made haste to the scene of action. The two lads were so intent on their enterprise as not to heed their approach and kept on peppering until both eyes were put out.

"Stick to him, Gid," said Squire, "and we'll fetch him bimby."

The father now called to them to stop and give him a chance. A single shot from his heavy gun closed the scene. The husband and father was drowned while attempting to cross the lake in early spring, after the ice had become weak and unsafe. His cries were distinctly heard at the house, but were unnoticed for those of some wild beast. His body was discovered the next day near a big rock which he was making vain endeavors to reach by breaking the ice before him; becoming exhausted by his efforts, besides being benumbed by his long continuance in the cold water, he sank to rise no more.

After the father's death, the mother and children continued the business with good success for several years. One spring Gideon captured a young moose. The creature gradually became so tame as to be handled as safely as a cat. He was kept in the family as a pet for several years until nearly full grown when, hearing that a menagerie was to be sent to Norway on a certain day, he was sold down and sold for a good round sum. One fine day the mother and Squire crossed the lake for the purpose of picking blueberries, which grew in great abundance on a piece of burnt land. They took with them a gun and some ammunition, as partridges were usually found on blueberry patches during their season. When near their destination they were met by an uncommonly large bear with a trap and chain attached to a hind leg. He at once assumed a fierce and warlike aspect, showing no disposition to get out of their path.

"What shall we do mother?" exclaimed the lad.

"Do," replied the mother, "why kill him of course."

"How can you do that?" persisted the lad. "We have nothing but fine shot, and you can't kill him with that—in a week."

The mother made no reply but commenced hunting for a rock with a hollow center. Finding one she set about kindling a fire over the hollow, telling the boy to keep watch of the bear. When the rock had become sufficiently heated she removed all the fire and ashes. She then poured into the hollow a quantity of shot which soon melted. Then taking her clay pipe she cleared it of tobacco, and dipping it full of the molten lead she had a well-shaped sling, which she discovered was too large for the base of her gun. To remedy this defect she found a large flat stone, and placing the slug upon the rock, she rolled it beneath the stone until reduced to the required size.

Loading her piece, she approached the bear to within a few feet directing the boy to stand in front of her.

"Now," said she, "I must shoot to kill or we be us no use!"

The bear becoming enraged at being thus confronted, reared upon his haunches and displayed his big teeth and red tongue. Considering this a favorable opportunity she rested her gun on the shoulder and taking deliberate aim sent the slug directly through his heart.

The question now was how to get him home. She first freed his leg from the trap and then twisting a stout white she tied it round his jaw in fashion.

She then placed it on the other end both laid hold and drew the heavy carcass to the boat landing. The day was hot and they were obliged to tag with all their might, but the lead being quite melting in their favor, so that they at last arrived at the landing. They then laid some stout skids by the help of which they rolled him to the boat. This animal before being dressed must have weighed over four hundred pounds.

They lived on from year to year prospering and laying by something for a wet day, until the law passed prohibiting the taking of fish at certain seasons.

As they lived out of it the state of Maine and thinking they held preferred claims by possession they paid no heed to the laws but kept on catching as usual and shipping to Boston.

For this they were prosecuted and heavily fined. A measure of vengeance was now taken, and that no good would come of their prosecution. Soon after this pickering were discovered in the lake which have multiplied to such an extent as to nearly annihilate the trout. This as to course drives the sportsmen to other parts and has completely turned the tide of summer travel in other directions, as damaging the surrounding country, as estimated by good judges, thousands of dollars.
